Report of the Event

Brief of the Activity:

Pencil sketching, often considered an art form, holds significant potential beyond its aesthetic appeal. Recognizing this, a series of pencil sketching sessions were organized for MBBS, PG's, and Interns students. These sessions aimed not only to provide a creative outlet but also to enhance observation skills, foster empathy, and promote holistic development among medical students. This report outlines the structure, methodology, outcomes, and reflections on conducting pencil sketching sessions for the students. The sessions received overwhelmingly positive feedback from students, who appreciated the opportunity to explore their creative side and develop new skills.

Brief of the Activity:

Pencil sketching, often considered an art form, holds significant potential beyond its aesthetic appeal. Recognizing this, a series of pencil sketching sessions were organized for MBBS, PG's, and Interns students. These sessions aimed not only to provide a creative outlet but also to enhance observation skills, foster empathy, and promote holistic development among medical students. This report outlines the structure, methodology, outcomes, and reflections on conducting pencil sketching sessions for the students. The sessions received overwhelmingly positive feedback from students, who appreciated the opportunity to explore their creative side and develop new skills.
